A spokesman for the Army Corps of Engineers in Grand Haven said that dredging of the Holland channel has been set for May 8. The operation is expected to take about two weeks.

Scholarship Funds Sought In Allegan

ALLEGAN — Since this week, April 5-11, has designated National Citizens' Scholarship Week, the Allegan Foundation has been busy planning their annual spring drive for funds.

Members of the local unit voted recently to conduct a house-to-house canvass in Allegan, the date to be announced soon. The city has been divided into units of several blocks each with a resident of the given area being asked to drive in his immediate neighborhood.

For the past two years the Allegan Citizens' Scholarship Foundation has filled an important educational need in the community. All students who desire to attend technical schools, junior colleges and colleges are eligible to apply for aid if they have graduated or expect to graduate from Allegan High School.

Scholarships are awarded impartially to "A," "B" and "C" students, with the amount determined by the student's need. Mrs. Francis Clair states the Allegan CSF needs the generous support of the community more than ever this year, due to the fact that on each of the previous years individual $1,000 gifts were received, but, to date, no such large amounts have been offered.

Fourteen Allegan High School graduates are now attending college with funds from the local Foundation. Several are in their second year. According to Mrs. Clair these students are eligible to re-apply for loans.

Attorney Tells Opti-Mrs. Club About Wills

George Lievense, local attorney, spoke on the subject of "Wills" to the Holland Opti-Mrs. Club Monday evening at a dinner meeting held at Jack's Restaurant.

He pointed out that many people are reluctant to face the reality of death and the need to plan for survivors. The creation of joint ownership and transfers of property during one's lifetime are not a good substitute for a will, he said. A will helps to simplify the probating of an estate and assures that the wishes and intentions of the individual are followed.

Lievense also explained the various aspects of Michigan laws concerning guardianships and trust funds and emphasized that probate court procedures follow an orderly process to insure protection of the heirs.

Following his talk, Mrs. Edwin Raphael conducted the business meeting. They voted to donate $100 to the YMCA for the Saturday morning youth work.

Officers elected for the coming year include Mrs. Raphael, president; Mrs. Donald Reek, vice president; Mrs. William Millar, secretary; Mrs. John Harthorne, treasurer, and Mrs. John Van Vuuren, member-at-large.

Rigid enforcement of Holland's garbage and refuse ordinance resulted in complaints against 30 householders Monday by representatives of the Department of Environmental Health.

Warrants were to be signed by Associate Municipal Judge John Galien today and it was expected most of them would be served later in the day. It was not determined when arraignments would be held.

Sam Stephenson, director of the Department of Environmental Health, and two employees of his department made a check of selected blocks in the city Monday. Most of these areas were those where complaints previously had been registered.

Charges ranged from burning or in the act of burning to the presence of 55-gallon oil drums holding both burned or unburned garbage and refuse, and wire baskets holding burned or unburned garbage or refuse.

Rigid enforcement of the ordinance was advocated by several Councilmen last week in preference to adopting a program of compulsory collection of solid wastes in the city. Council adopted the ordinance last May.

The ordinance prohibits outdoor burning or burying of garbage or refuse and permits only approved indoor incinerators. It also requires covered garbage cans of 10 to 32 gallons in size.

Dump Rules Unchanged For Present

Operations at the city dump will remain unchanged until July 1 when the new budget goes into effect, and possibly later, City Manager Herb Holt said today.

Holt said the solid wastes disposal study (covering garbage) is very much a part of budget study and City Council has several such study sessions scheduled this week.

Holt said in time the city dump will be relocated since a part of the present dump will be developed into parking area for Project Windmill. The program to improve dump operations is based on land fill which in turn contributes to land reclamation. Plans on relocation call for establishing a new dumping area at the foot of Sixth St. on leased land which eventually may become part of the windmill project.

Under a land fill program, dumping must be done on concentrated areas and covered by compaction every day. This will curtail dumping hours. The current program calls for the dump to be open 12 to 14 hours a day, six days a week. The new program may limit the program to five days a week, six hours a day.

Three Jailed After Chase

Events started when store owner Clare Piersma reported a brick had been thrown through the store window. Piersma and Dr. John Post who has an office next door found a man inside the store, but he escaped through the front door and jumped into a car and headed east on M-50.

Deputy Blair stopped the fleeing car on M-50 but two escaped in the car and a third on foot, despite warning shots. As the car approached a roadblock set up by Deputy John Dykgraaf, a mile east, the car went out of control, rolled over and struck a tree, coming to rest on its wheels. LEGISLATIVE BREAKFAST — State senators and representatives of Ottawa and Allegan districts discussed legislative matters in Lansing at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast Monday in Hotel Warm Friend. Seated at speakers table (left to right) are Sen. Frederic Hilbert of

Chamber Hears 4 Lawmakers

Civic leaders of Holland brushed up on legislative matters at a Chamber of Commerce breakfast in Hotel Warm Friend Monday featuring a panel of four members of the state legislature of Ottawa and Allegan counties. Holland city lies in both counties. About 100 attended.

From appropriations and apportionment to workmen's compensation and uniform equalization, the four guests, Sen. Clyde H. Geerlings and Rep. Riemer Van Til of Ottawa county and Sen. Frederic Hilbert and James F. Farnsworth of Allegan county, presented a broad picture of governmental functions on the state level. William Lalley of the Chamber's legislative action committee served as moderator.

Sen. Geerlings emphasized a growing need for uniform equalized assessments as state aid becomes broader. Certain areas in the upper peninsula assess real estate including motels at 7 per cent, automatically putting such counties into the classification of distressed areas, he said. Even more at odds is the state-wide personal property assessment picture, one of vast inequities.

Geerlings added that while the equalization subject is not glamorous, there is a bi-partisan approach and a greater feeling for solving it this year than at any previous time.

Rep. Van Til, chairman of the labor committee, said this is not likely to be a significant year for labor reform since there is not enough support for the bills he would like to see passed. Unlike the approach to equalization, any labor consideration is always partisan and the chairman is always the symbol of conservatism by what he termed left-wing labor groups.

Van Til said premiums on workmen's compensation have doubled since 1956 but benefits remain the same. He said 95 per cent of compensation claims are paid without question but the remaining 5 per cent or "chiselers" present a disproportionate problem.

He felt there should be a statute of limitation on a good share of the claims of back trouble, silicosis, etc. As a member of the elections committee, Van Til said 35 bills had to be passed so that the state election code could conform to the new constitution. He added there were no new developments on plans to expand Holland State Park. This is now in the ways and means committee.

Sen. Hilbert said the entire legislature is very aware of safety problems on the highway and said many bills have been introduced. He agreed under-age drivers (16 and 17) should be treated as adults in having points on their driving records and said a bill to that effect is in the House. As for the government being in the nursery business, he had no defense for the government on the Christmas tree front but felt there might be some defense for certain varieties for game habits not likely to be raised by commercial nurserymen.

Rep. Farnsworth said that in two years Michigan had recovered from an $85 million deficit to an indicated surplus of $61 million. As a member of the appropriations committee which handles all funds not earmarked, he said every pressure group is after that surplus and he spends more time in committee work than anything else. He pointed out, however, that both the Veterans Trust Fund and the Liquor Revolving Fund had been liquidated, and if refunds were to be made the state government would have a deficit.

On a question of eliminating tools, dies and jigs from personal property assessments, Sen. Geerlings likened it to a gas war. Since Ohio eliminates these assessments, there is considerable pressure for Michigan to do so in order to encourage expansion of the automotive industry in this state. Also to be considered are hundreds of small businesses which manufacture small items for the automotive trade. Eventually, what the state loses in personal property assessments should be gained in expanded tax base, he said.

On reapportionment, Farnsworth felt the House and Senate will resolve the congressional district problem although it might take many hours behind locked doors to accomplish it. He said the new constitution names the supreme court as arbitrator for house and senate reapportionment and currently the court is studying four plans, one from Republicans, two from Democrats and the fourth the so-called one man—one vote concept as advanced by top labor leaders.

Views From The Campus

(Dr. Lars Granberg was appointed to the Hope College faculty in 1947. From 1954 to 1960 he served as Dean of Students and Associate Professor of Pastoral Counseling at Fuller Theological Seminary. He returned to Hope College in 1960 where he now serves as the head of the Student Counseling Service and Professor of Psychology. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Chicago. — Editor's Note.)

By Dr. Lars Granberg

Veteran college faculty members agree that college students aren't what they were a generation ago. It's not just that conk skin coats, yellow slickers and wisecrack-plastered flivvers are replaced by beards, dirty sneakers and foreign sport cars. The changes run deep.

On the surface students are the same as ever. Spring still kicks off a wide range of ingenious tomfoolery. Students don't swallow goldfish or stick cows in the bellies much any more, but each year brings new bursts of creativity. Remember phone booth stuffing? Long distance trips via bedstead?

Students haven't changed in the things they really want either. They want a faith to live by which gives meaning and support through difficult and good times. They want a life work through which they can express their ideals and which brings out the best in them. Most hope for a life partner who shares their faith and their dreams.

The big change is a deep, inner unsureness. Students are under great pressure. Since Sputnik they have been pushed along faster in high school. It is increasingly difficult to enter college and once in, the real trick is to stay in and pile up a record that impresses a graduate school or prospective employer.

But, it's not the hard work

nor the nagging threat of failure that makes the tension so crippling. The main trouble is they're not sure why they're doing it. Life doesn't have a very clear point.

This generation grew up under the shadow of The Bomb. Throughout its school days one public scandal after another involving athletes, government officials and entertainers, shook our nation. Extremists of the left and right sowed seeds of suspicion and hate. Time-honored moral standards were stretched wider and wider. The attitude of pillars of church and community toward the Negro's struggle for justice is in some way the most bewildering of all.

To whom do they look for guidance? Athletes? Entertainers? Government officials? Pillars of their community? "Who knows what's really right?" they ask, in no mood for glib moralisms from those who don't give evidence of believing their own pronouncements.

Some wonder whether anything matters except the pleasure of the moment. Too many feel lost. A few glory in their loss. Most students want help and direction, but confidence in the wisdom and sincerity of their elders has been shaken.

It seems to me that Hope College was founded to serve such a day. Recognizing that young people need to question and to scrutinize the answers they hear if they are ever to form their own conviction, Hope does a remarkable job of combining frank, straightforward Christian instruction, offered without apology, with an atmosphere of openness which allows young people to raise questions and to face honestly what they really believe.

Sometimes those off campus worry about the wisdom of so much freedom for students to inquire and to speak their mind. Hope College believes that this is the road to true conviction and commitment, and that the best place to ask hard, searching questions is at a Christian college. Here they can be discussed with faculty members who have struggled with the same questions and have found their sense of direction in the Christian faith.

There is an openness and a response to honesty in today's students which is humbling and challenging. Young people want opportunities to talk seriously with those who have found a faith to live by and, if necessary, die for; who acknowledge their own questions and shortcomings, and who respect the young person's right and duty to make his own decisions. It is an invigorating time to be a college teacher!

'Enjoy Flower Arranging' Mrs. Barton Tells Club

Mrs. W. H. Barton, East Lansing, conducted a workshop on flower arranging at the regular meeting of the Holland Garden Club on Thursday afternoon at the Woman's Literary Club. The speaker discussed the basics of flower arranging and flower show practice.

Mrs. Barton told her audience, "if you can't enjoy flower arranging—forget it!" and continued, "the contemporary arrangement expresses the arranger and usually looks like the arranger." She told of the difference between an arrangement for home and for a flower show, the latter being a little more dramatic and colorful.

"A flower arrangement should say something and not be just decorative, although in an abstract arrangement you should put into it just what you feel," she said, which is perhaps why some arrangements look the way they do! In an interpretive arrangement, express the theme so clearly you can feel it." Mrs. Barton expressed the importance of searching for the best material to express particular ideas.

Using the blackboard to clarify her instructions she showed how the primary line is first drawn, then the variations of the parabolic curve added to form the skeleton of an arrangement. These lines determine the height and width of the arrangement which should be in proportion to the niche used or the space allotted. In an interesting fashion, she showed how to divide a space in such a way as to give it movement and rhythm.

Mrs. Barton said that the principles of flower arranging are: balance to cause the observer to feel its stability; rhythm which may be created by repetition; contrast in color and texture and dominance of color, texture or line. She said that the elements of design are always used in arranging and that line, form, pattern, color and texture are five important words.

She concluded her workshop by criticizing the arrangements, designed to be criticized, which were contributed by Mrs. Leonard Dick, Mrs. C. C. Candee, Mrs. Stuart Padnos, Mrs. Austin Bocks and Mrs. Edward Brolin.

Mrs. Joseph Lang, president, announced the second workshop in preparation for the flower show, "Nature's Color Drama," will be on April 16 at 9:30 a.m. at the Woman's Literary Club. Mrs. Frederick W. Stanton will clarify the 1964 Flower Show Schedule.

Tickets for the June 4 annual luncheon may be obtained from Mrs. Donald Hogue, ticket chairman. Members may bring guests, cards will be played following the luncheon which will be held at the American Legion Memorial Park Club.

Increase Park Parking Area At Holland

LANSING — Plans were announced Saturday by the Conservation Department to expand the parking area for day users at Holland State Park.

A $44,000 contract will be awarded early in May to enlarge the parking area for day users by 160 parking sites. Work is expected to begin after the 1964 tourist season and is slated for completion by November 1.

The new parking area will be constructed in the area behind the north end of the park's bath house and will cut into current tent and trailer camping sites. Officials estimated that the new parking facilities will remove 40 to 50 camp sites, boosting parking capacity for daily users from the current 450 cars to more than 600 automobiles.

The Holland project is part of the Conservation Department's $375,000 construction plans for four Western Michigan state parks. Plans call for new facilities at Muskegon, Silver Lake, Mears, and Holland state parks.

Once work is completed at the four parks, they will be able to handle a combined total of 4,000 extra recreationists per day, conservation officials said.

Financing of these projects comes through the $10 million state park bonding program which is being underwritten by the sale of vehicle entrance permits.

Tryon, N.C. Horse Race To Honor Carter Brown

TRYON, N. C. — Carter Brown, owner of the Castle Park resort south of Holland, has been honored by his many friends in Tryon, N. C., with the naming of one of the races the Carter Brown Memorial.

Information about the new race and Brown's long career in Tryon was published last week in the Charlotte Observer, in a column written by Wilton Garrison, Observer Sports Editor.

The column was sent to Sentinel publisher W. A. Butler by Albert W. Sherer of Chicago, and a longtime summer Castle Park resident.

In the column, Garrison wrote "Carter Brown is retiring this year after being one of the outstanding horsemen in the nation for 45 years. Rider, trainer, owner, judge, steward, racing secretary, starter, general manager — you name it and odds are he's filled the job at one time or another."

Garrison's column reported that 20,000 were to gather at world-famous Springdale course at Camden for the 30th running of the Carolina Cup steeplechase which was held March 28.

But unlike last race, the first race in 1929 was run over a rough, unfinished course, partly cornfields, and Garrison wrote "A man who should know all about it is Carter Brown of Tryon, for he rode in that first one, the preliminary to the Carolina Cup which officially started in 1930."

"Brown recalls that Harry Worcester Smith of Aiken, later the first American to be a MFH (Master of Fox Hounds) in Ireland, also rode in that 1929 race. So did Carroll Bassett and Noel Lang, two of the best amateur riders in history.

"Bassett, who later trained horses for Mrs. Marion de Pont Scott, was also a sculptor and designed the Carolina Cup emblem. Brown doesn't recall too much about that first race except that just after he passed Smith he (Brown) also went down when his saddle slipped.

"When Brown arrived at Tryon in 1918 from Michigan and saw the possibilities for making it an equestrian center because of the climate and terrain, a number of residents held fears that the move might attract a lot of "horse bums" to the little foothills resort town.

"Instead, it made Tryon prosper. The Tryon Riding and Hunt Club has become one of the nation's most noted for its hunts, horse and hound show, and later (in 1947) the Block House steeplechase.

"Brown recalls that he secured George Wicke as first MFH at Tryon and that local dogs were rounded up to train. Wicke often joked that his title of MFH actually meant "Master of Four Hounds."

"The Pacolet Plate, one of the Block House brush races, will now be named the Carter Brown Memorial. C. A. Plamondon, who restored the Block House (once a frontier trading post in the 1700's) to its present state, has contributed the trophy to be given to the winner. It is a bronze plaque depicting a racing scene and also dates back over 200 years.

"Although few people know about it, Brown was once issued a license at the State of

Carter Brown ... outstanding horseman

North Carolina to run horse races with pari-mutuel betting in Polk County. He never used it.

"The first 'Cup' race run in Tryon was between Brown and his two young sons, Carter Wilkie and Austin. The entry fee was 50 cents and the trophy for the point-to-point winner a battered tin cup. The course was near the present Block House scene and the 'Brown Cup' drew a lot of spectators.

"As Brown looks back over the years he remembers many people who played a big part in establishing training and racing headquarters in the Carolinas — Harry Kirkover ... Ambrose Clark ... Mickey Walsh and his family ... the Hitchcocks of Aiken — and many others.

"One of his favorites was Clark, who died recently. "Ambrose and Mrs. Clark operated separate stables," recalls Carter. "One year Ambrose had a horse in training for the Grand National in Ireland. After watching him work out before the race, he remarked: 'I'd sell him for a pound.' Mrs. Clark replied: 'Sold.' She won the race with the horse several days later."

"Brown remembers Bassett, Ray Woolfe, Noel Lang, Dooley Adams, Pete Bostwick and Burly Cocks as among the best riders he has seen in his long career. "They were all amateurs then, but now professional riders do most of the work," he says. He remembers "Bluish" as the best hunter he ever had.

"The new race at Tryon shows what they think of Brown there. Horsemen will

EARL F. PRICE

A familiar figure will be missing from downtown places, particularly Civic Center, with the passing Wednesday of Earl F.
Price, who managed the building since its inception 10 years ago.

Present at most functions in Civic Center, Earl seemed to be ever-present when the telephone rang, when any person had to be paged or when an emergency arose. He never missed a basketball game and was always interested in how local teams fared.

Mr. Price came to Holland in 1933 as manager of the local J.C.
Penney Co. at that time located on Eighth St. at College Ave.
Five years later, the store moved to larger quarters at Eighth and River, a highly desirable location, resulting in increased business and an undisputed claim as one of Holland's leading department stores.

The active, no-nonsense approach Price had for business was used to good advantage
when he became manager of Civic Center in 1954, two years after he retired from the Penney Co. Always energetic, he gave willingly of his time and efforts to many civic projects including Holland's Tulip Time festival which he managed for two years from 1954 to 1956.

But his first love in retirement was Civic Center. His business acumen stood him in good stead for the many challenges that confronted him in a venture
new to him and new to the city of Holland.

That he succeeded in this challenging assignment is unquestioned. He was proud of the building, proud of its services and derived personal satisfaction from being a part of its successful operation.

He will be missed.

Conferences
Slated Here
By Seminaries

Students from the two seminaries of the Reformed Church in America will meet here this week for their annual interseminary conference. Men from the New Brunswick Theological Seminary, New Brunswick,
N. J., and the student body of Western Theological Seminary
will meet together Thursday,
to begin the three day conference
on the Western Seminary Campus.

"Liturgy and Unity" will be the theme of the conference and the focal point of the papers presented by students from both seminaries. The current revivals of interest in liturgy and ecumenicity will be discussed as they relate to one another and to the Reformed Church in America. A special emphasis will be directed to the new Proposed Liturgy of the R. C. A. and the matter of denominational unity.

A dinner for the entire student body and their guests as well as an Agape Breakfast and a Communion Service is planned. The visiting seminarians will be hosted in the homes of the Western students.

Man's Place
In God's Universe
Psalm 8

By C. P. Dame

The title of this lesson is thought-provoking. It speaks to us of God and of man. The Bible tells us about the greatness of God and the dignity of man whom God made in His image. God put man in His universe for a definite purpose.

I. God is deserving of all praise. Psalm 8 is much God-centered. There are a number of interesting references to God in this psalm. God has revealed Himself in two books—
the book of nature and the book of grace—the Bible. In theology we speak of general revelation and of special revelation. This universe proclaims the glory of God. Note that the words, "who has set thy glory
above the heavens," are followed by the words, "Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings has thou ordained strength." We do not associate strength with babes. The tongues of infants praise God for the provisions He has made for them.

II. God is thoughtful of men.
At night, as the psalmist considered the heavens, the moon and the stars which God had created he compared the wonderful sight which he saw with frail man. What a contrast! He was moved to ask, "What is man, that thou art mindful of him? And the son of man, that thou visitest him?" He believed that God is concerned about people, about individuals.
Many modern men scorn the idea that God has any care for a person. Christians know that God remembers His people.
This is most encouraging—especially in times of sorrow,
losses, loneliness.

III. God gave man dominion over this universe. God created man in His own image.
Man has a rational image of God and hence he can think the thoughts of God after Him.
Man also has a moral image of God and therefore he has a sense of oughtness. Man's image of God has been dulled by his fall but he still has it. God gave man dominion over His universe—this is another indication of man having God's image. In this day we are learning more and more about this universe and how to use its powers. Unfortunately man is gaining more power which can be used for destructive purposes. This is not in harmony with God's idea.

God highly honored man
when He "put all things under his feet." In ancient times man tamed animals for his use. Today man is discovering the powers of nature and harnessing them for his use. Much progress has been made within the last few years along this line. Animals make no progress.
Birds make their nests in the same way. Man improves house building constantly. Automobiles are being improved.
God wants man to use nature's powers in order to glorify Him. This is God's world and God does not want man to exploit it for his own benefit but to study and investigate and use it for Him and mankind.

Trial Is Set
After Chase

Following a wild chase Monday evening which one Holland officer described as the most insane demonstration of reckless driving he ever encountered,
Reed Allen Kuite, 22, of 99 East 31st St., was arraigned at noon today on reckless driving charges in Holland Municipal Court.

Associate Judge John Galien
accepted a not guilty plea so that Kuite could consult an attorney and set trial for April 15.
Kuite was released on his own recognizance.

The chain of events started at 5:50 p.m. Monday when officer
Ron Myrick noticed a car speeding west on 16th St. and set about to warn the driver. But the car took off at a high rate of speed and ran a stop sign at Ottawa and 17th, circling back and forth in the area from 17th to 13th Sts. and Ottawa, Harrison and Van Raalte Aves.

The chase at speeds up to 90
then continued in the vicinity of 23rd and 24th Sts., Van Raalte Ave. and Wildwood Dr., finally ending in the Bohn Aluminum parking lot where the two occupants took off on foot and ran into Lt. Ernest Bear who was coming to Myrick's assistance.

Officers said there were children playing on 13th St. between Harrison and Van Raalte Ave.
when the chase went through that area. Kuite's companion was not charged.

HELPING BLUEBIRDS — These Boy Scouts from Troop 11 are shown constructing birdhouses and it is hoped that bluebirds will use the houses this summer. The scouts plan to get permission from nearby farmers to place the house close to their orchards. Troop 11 is sponsored by Hope Church. Making the birdhouses

Scouts Build
Bird Houses

Taking a tip from the magazine "Readers Digest," Scouts of Troop 11, Hope Church, are building bluebird houses to aid in an attempt to bring back
this beautiful songbird.

Surveys conducted the last few years have shown a drastic decline in the number of bluebirds reported seen, and an article in the "Readers Digest" has stimulated considerable interest in trying to save this singing friend of the farmer.

Under the direction of Holland ornithologist Dr. William Arendshorst, the boys set up a production line at their regular Monday night scouting meeting and built 12 new houses.

When the houses are completed and painted, the boys will take a hike to get permission from nearby farmers to place
the houses close to their orchards where the birds seem to frequent most.

The troop is sponsored by Hope Church and its Scoutmaster is Ray Wilkinson. Ben Moore is assistant Scoutmaster.

ter. The club chose Dr. Mor-rette Rider to be vice-president.
Mrs. William Winter, secretary and Harold Karsten, treasurer.

Following the dinner, Dr. Winter introduced Mary Jo Borre-son of Washington who spoke to the Club on the subject, "Washington Personalities."

"Mae Craig and Margaret Chase Smith simply do not like each other!" said the speaker
when asked if there wasn't gune, ruse or artifice in the antagonistic play between Mae and Margaret. "In fact," Mrs.
Borreson said "there are no
hidden meanings between Washington personalities in their professional hostilities. But socially such enemies are courteous, polite and even friendly in their relationships.

"In Washington national news is local news." The speaker mentioned the jolt one gets when first taking up residence in Washington, of running into newsmakers at the dry cleaners,
the super markets, the PTA, and other working organizations.

Mrs. Borreson, whose husband is dean of students at the University of Maryland, spoke of the great educational institutions in Washington, most of which are well known; such as George Washington University,
Catholic University, American University, and others.

She spoke at length of the little known Gallaudet College for the deaf, where all the students are deaf as are the teachers, at least victims of loss of hearing of some advanced degree. She spoke of their fine work in drama, modern dance, folk dancing. In fact, she said that the Gallaudet Folk Dancing group will represent the United States at the Olympics in Tokyo this summer.

Mrs. Borreson said she had no "inside information." She lives in Washington and likes living in Washington despite the climate that categorizes it as a hardship area for the diplomatic Corps, the lack of skilled services and the deplorable social welfare problems and the poor school system.

Dr. and Mrs. Sidney Tiesenga were social chairmen for the dinner. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Ten Cate,
Mr. and Mrs. Harold Karsten, Dr. and Mrs. Rider, Mr. and Mrs. M.C. Lindeman, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde H. Geerlings, Dr.
and Mrs. Harvey Kleinheksel.

Hope Edged, 6-5 By Notre Dame

NOTRE DAME, Ind. — Notre Dame's baseball team pushed across a run in the bottom of the 12th inning here Monday to edge Hope College, 6-5 at Carter Field.

The game, believed to be the first in history between the two schools, concluded Hope's southern trip and gave the Flying Dutchmen a 2-4-1 mark.

Hope opens regular season's play in a doubleheader against Calvin on April 15 at the Hope field. Monday's game was Notre Dame's home opener and the Fighting Irish had a 3-4-1 southern trip mark.

Notre Dame loaded the bases with three walks in the 12th inning. With one out, Shaun Fitzmaurice, Notre Dame's leading hitter with a .375 average, slammed a hard line to second baseman Chuck Veurink.

He knocked the ball down, stepped on second for the force out but his throw to first just missed getting Fitzmaurice and the winning run, Al Kristowski, crossed the plate.

Hope scored two runs in the fifth and two in the seventh and tied it with a single run in the top of the ninth. With two out in the ninth, Rog Kroodsma singled, Clare Van Wieren was safe on an error and Pete Haverkamp singled home Kroodsma.

In the fifth, Con Nienhuis was hit by a pitch and Bill Pluister and Wayne Cotts followed with singles to load the bases. Art Kramer singled to score Nienhuis and Glenn Van Wieren was hit by a pitched ball to force in the second run.

Cotts and Glenn Van Wieren walked in the seventh, advanced to second and third on wild throws and scored on Clare Van Wieren's single. Hope made eight hits, all singles, including two by Kramer.

The Irish made seven hits including a double and triple by John Counsell and a double by Joe Schrader. Hope made its two errors in the second inning and Notre Dame scored three unearned runs in the frame.

Joey Bosworth worked nine innings for Hope and was relieved by Kroodsma in the 10th. Bosworth also pitched last week in Hope's 4-2 loss to Memphis State. Coach Al Brown went Hope coach Daryl Siedentop and called Bosworth "the best pitcher we've faced this year and we were lucky to beat him."

Siedentop was pleased with Hope's play on the tour, especially its 3-3 tie with Union College last Friday. Union is the national defending champion of the NCAA college division. Hope's Saturday game with Union was rained out.

Line score:

Hope	000	020
Notre Dame	100	001
Batteries:	Bosworth, Kroodsma (10), and Kramer;	Karasm, Kennedy (7), Snow (9) Sauter.

The altar was decorated with flower arrangements of yellow and white carnations, gladioli and pompons and candelabra. Lee De Pree played the wedding music and also accompanied Lavern Stevens when she sang "Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer."

A full-length gown of bouffant organza with long sleeves and Alencon lace appliques on a soft bell skirt was worn by the bride as she approached the altar with her father, Alencon lace appliques also adorned the neckline and chapel train which flowed from a bow in back. The shoulder-length veil of French illusion was accented with pearls on a cluster of roses. She carried a white orchid on a Bible.

The maid of honor, Miss Edith Foreman, sister of the bride, wore an aqua gown fashioned with a bell skirt, short

Literary Club Honors Its Past Presidents

For its last regular meeting of the year, the Woman's Literary Club Tuesday afternoon honored its past presidents, opening the event with a desert tea in the club's tea room.

Past presidents pouring were Mrs. William G. Winter, Mrs. Alvin Bos, Mrs. Bruce van Leuwen and Mrs. Garrett Vander Borgh. Other past presidents mingling among the members were Mrs. J. C. Rhea, Mrs. Charles K. Van Duren, Mrs. John K. Winter, Mrs. Clarence Becker and Mrs. Carl Harrington. In the reception line were Mrs. Kenneth Koolker, club president, and the two vice presidents, Mrs. Jerome Coughlin and Mrs. S. Walter Kuipers.

The tea was in charge of Division V headed by Mrs. Arnold Dood and Mrs. James Lamb. Tea table flowers were arranged by Mrs. Harrington. All past presidents wore corsages.

Later at the regular meeting, the club heard an interesting talk by Mrs. Mary Jo Borreson of Washington, D.C., children's author, actress, housewife and mother of four.

Under the title, "I Can't Help Writing," Mrs. Borreson paraphrased the old definition of one-tenth inspiration and nine-tenths perspiration to one-tenth aptitude and nine-tenths ineptitude. She traced in part her own biography, particularly as it dealt with experiences in radio work and writing.

Mrs. Borreson's books are a series of children's books on such topical subjects as Williamsburg, Va., Mount Vernon and Independence Hall in Philadelphia. They are roughly geared to children 4 to 6 years old but are used on broader age levels.

The question period led to interesting information on several fronts. The financial return to an author (unless he writes a roaring best seller) is far less than most people believe. In Mrs. Borreson's case, she receives six cents royalty on each retail sale ($1.95) and in case of discount houses 1½ cents per copy. Had she illustrated her own book, the return would have been 12 cents per copy. She added she does not expect to put her four children through college on her book royalties.

The author finds her own children sharply critical of her writing—a characteristic often helpful if unflattering. She said her children take a reasonable amount of pride in having an author for a mother, but not enough to give her books as birthday presents unless specifically asked for one.

Mrs. Borreson did not pretend it is easy to write with four active children in the house, and quite often does such work late at night—a quiet time when telephones do not ring. She works everywhere in the house and found the basement ping pong table an excellent place to lay out research materials.

She said children's books present a fertile field for a writer, especially if such a writer knows about horses. Each manuscript though only 48 pages, requires massive research, and about a month for writing after research is completed.

Earlier in the meeting, the club president paid tribute to two past presidents who died the past year, Mrs. R. C. Bosch and Mrs. W. J. Olive.

Mrs. Albert Nuttle explained the club's coming "Attic Sales" special to be staged Friday, April 24, in the clubhouse.

Printed copies of reports of all club committees were distributed.

Netherlands Museum Tells History, Heritage

Items Show Character Of Settlers

Collection Includes Model Dutch Homes, Van Raalte Effects

Holland, Mich., 1964, presents a picture of a successful college community with an interesting Dutch ancestry and heritage.

Holland, 1847, presented a completely different picture with nothing but an undrained swamp and forests filled with insects.

Plagued with sickness and scanty food supplies, the early settlers under the leadership of the Rev. Albertus Christiaan Van Raalte survived a summer scourge of sickness and formed the basis of today's Holland.

A trip through the Netherlands Museum will relate this story of that early Holland to tourists and will further acquaint local residents with their Dutch heritage.

The museum itself was founded in 1937 with the first exhibits being shown in Hope College Memorial Chapel. Because of the interest shown, items of local, historical meaning were obtained and the museum was moved into the Temple Building on 10th St. In 1939, the museum was moved to its present location on the corner of 12th St. and Central Ave. The residence had previously been used as Holland Hospital.

Articles and exhibits in the museum have come from people of the community, museums in the Netherlands and from the World's Fairs held in New York and San Francisco in 1939.

The history of Holland dates back to Nov. 18, 1846, when Van Raalte and a group of 60 immigrants landed in New York City. A photostat of the original passenger list on that sailing brig "Southerner" can be seen on the first floor of the museum.

The group went to Detroit where a temporary base was established from which Van Raalte surveyed possible areas to settle.

He had first considered settling in Wisconsin but he was impressed with Michigan and its people. Moreover, the Holland site offered access to Lake Michigan which was important because there were no roads or rail transportation. However, all was not "a bed of roses" and they were confronted with harbor facility problems. Even today federal aid is sought to make the present channel more navigable.

Van Raalte made several trips through the Allegan and Kalamazoo area and late in December found a spot overlooking the mouth of the Black River. As depicted in a diorama in the museum, he knelt down at the site and asked God's guidance in this location choice. He was accompanied by an Indian guide and a good friend and aide, Judge Kellogg of Allegan.

The museum also has a scale model of the Pottawatomie Indian village which the Dutch found on their arrival in Holland. This was located approximately where the Heinz Company now stands.

The character and personality of Rev. Van Raalte is reflected in the museum's collection of his daily belongings. His sermon file conveys his deep religious faith while his worn black top hat indicates the hard work and long hours needed to inspire and encourage the settlers in the early years.

Also included in the exhibit is a large portrait of Rev. Van Raalte along with some of his wife's jewelry, his application for U.S. citizenship, his suitcase and the Psalm book used by the family's hired girl.

Evidence of the city's progress is seen walking through the first floor. An ox yoke, a pioneer's one-handed plow, crude tools and huge mud shoes for oxen bring to reality the life of the earlier settlers.

One may also see a huge hallowed out tree which was used as part of the city's water line and a model of the first sawmill, undoubtedly Holland's first industry, which was built on Black River.

A set of carpenter's tools belonging to Leonard Visser, an early settler will attest to both the neatness and skill of the people. Other items on display include candle molds, a wall-type coffee grinder, old fashioned razors and peppermint boxes.

(In the early days the church services would last as long as three hours.)

The men and boys would sit on one side of the church and the women and girls on the other side. The women would carry the peppermint boxes filled with the small, hard Dutch peppermints and give them to the children when they began to fidget. Similar boxes also held sponges of cologne — they were for mother to sniff from when she felt the sermons were becoming too long!

While the first floor of the museum shows the history of Holland, the second floor depicts the Netherlands which the people left behind.

Of course, one of the things the Dutch housewife did not leave behind was her treasured Delft pottery for which the Netherlands is famous.

Viewing the pieces which include shaving bowls, apothecary jars, spice jars and a giant spittoon, one can easily imagine the life of the Netherlands.

The Dutch decorators of the 1850's placed special emphasis on tile used on the hearth and on the walls around the fireplaces.

Each tile was designed to tell a story depicting a religious scene, children or animals.

Among the fascinating articles is a window washer which is designed in the shape of a "V" and looks like part of a musical instrument. The washer is so constructed that the bottom of the pump is placed in a bucket of water and when the plunger is forced down, water spurts on the windows.

Of course the most intriguing sections of the museum are the two model rooms: One furnished like a typical kitchen of a rural home in the province of Zeeland in 1850 and the second patterned after a typical fisherman's home in the province of Volendam.

The Zeeland room is furnished with many pieces brought to Holland by the early Dutch. The baby cradle in the corner was used in Van Raalte's home. On the side wall is a "kaasje" which is a large cupboard for bedclothes and linen.

Another eye-catcher in the room is the large wooden high chair standing in the corner. The lower part of the chair houses a brazier where burning coals are placed to keep the child warm.

Also in the room is a large Dutch Bible which is a charred testimony of the wind-fed fire which struck the city in 1871. (Legend recalls the fire was started by a spark from the Chicago fire, but fact verifies that it was started by brush fires on the southwest outskirts of the city.)

The fisherman's home in Volendam province is a one-room, multi-purpose home designed to conserve heat.

This room conveys a certain warmth that must have been shared by the entire family — mother's spinning wheel in the corner and father's pipes hanging on the wall along with the children's skates.

The fireplace is constructed of 16th century ceramic tiles and is flanked by brass kettles, pans and pudding and cookie molds. On the table are pieces of the original red Delft tea set and a coffee grinder. That hole in the wall is really a wall bed with a goose feather mattress (the pull hanging in the center of the bed is used to help people turn over).

The bed is also constructed to conserve both space and heat. The cupboard beneath the bed is used for storage of vegetables. If the family is large, children could sleep there.

One important and essential item found in both rooms is the "voetenwarmer" or foot-warmer. There are three kinds: The wooden and brass ones heated with charcoal and the double warmers heated with hot water. There were even "portable" footwarmers for use on sleigh rides and in church.

The basement of the museum is used for special displays. At present it houses collections from Indonesia, formerly the Dutch East Indies, the Netherlands Antilles and Surinam (Dutch Guiana). All were colonies of the Netherlands and during the 19th century made important contributions to the Dutch economy.

Most intriguing are the Balinese idols — a god in the form of a man and a demon in form of a woman. They were made from volcanic stone and each weighs 1,000 pounds. The idols came from San Francisco World's Fair in 1939.

Also on display is a tom tom covered with human skin, a witchcraft book carved on tree bark and native weapons including a bone dagger and hand-carved spears.

A place to enjoy and review history, the museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily except Sunday.

in the room enjoying tea as the Dutch women of more than 100 years ago would have. On the table is a coffee grinder and a red Delft teapot.

FOLKLORE EXHIBIT — As an introduction to the Heritage section at the Netherlands Museum, a schematic map of the Netherlands has been placed on the landing leading to the second floor. Frances Mrok, Robin Beelen and Diane Bosley (left to right) are shown looking at the lighted displays which show the traditional festivals.

PANORAMIC VIEW — The main floor of the Netherlands Museum is devoted to objects used by the first settlers of Holland. Diane Bosley (foreground) is shown looking at a display of household objects used in the early homes while Robin Beelen (center) is viewing a replica of an early Dutch merry-go-round. Frances Mrok (background) is standing by one of the first time clocks used in the Holland Furnace Company.

TREASURED DELFTWARE — Examples of Delft pottery for which Holland is known are on display in the Netherlands Museum. The tin-enameled earthenware, similar to Spanish majolica, gained world-wide prominence in the 17th and 18th centuries. Pieces at the museum include apothecary jars and a large spittoon. Many of the dishes are hundreds of years old.

HINDERLOOPEN SLEIGH — Frances Mrok entertains Elizabeth, 1, and Alfred Bransdorfer, 3, (left to right) who are sitting in a Hindeloopen sleigh in the Netherlands Museum. The town of Hindeloopen is known for its highly decorated furniture. The sleigh is pushed by skating behind it.
